

Greater Indy
Habitat for Humanity®

2015 Community Report

LETTER FROM CEO & BOARD CHAIR

Dear Partners,

“Habitat for Humanity is a perpetual motion miracle. Everyone who receives, gives – and everyone who gives, receives. If you want to live complacent and uninspired, stay away from Habitat. Come close to Habitat, and it will change you and make you part of something that changes the world.”

– Screenwriter Randall Wallace, most famous for his screenplay for the 1995 film “Braveheart” and who also founded Hollywood for Habitat for Humanity.

In 2015, Greater Indy Habitat for Humanity provided the life-changing opportunity for individuals and families to purchase and own safe, decent and affordable housing for its 28th year. The board, staff and volunteers definitely received much more than we gave as Wallace so aptly stated. We were also in perpetual motion with several new initiatives that helped advance the mission and promote that no one lives in dignity until everyone can live in dignity.

Board Inspiration

Prior to 2015, the board of directors had raised money traditionally through personal giving. In 2015 the board of directors set out to inspire individual donors to give through a peer giving event called the Board Build. The 19 board members each created teams of 10-15 individuals who raised money and participated in building a home. Together they raised more than $66,000. While governing and ensuring the fiscal health of the organization is a part of their responsibility, the board showed that they can also be the hands and feet of Christ through their tremendous efforts to help fund and construct a home.

Staying in perpetual motion

We also saw several new projects start or expand to increase our ability to provide affordable homeownership. Together, we:

- Built two homes during the Indiana State Fair through our numerous Indiana Agriculture partners. In the previous five years, we only had built one home each year. The Indiana Ag industry answered the challenge of building a second home during the 17-day fair.
- Opened a third ReStore in Avon, repurposing a former Ace Hardware building. This helped us reach $1.4 million in gross sales from the ReStore for the first time.
- Started the Builders Circle, our donor recognition program, to broaden and further engage our individual donor base.
- Hosted our first annual Kick-Off event at DeveloperTown, where hundreds of attendees learned more about Greater Indy Habitat, but more importantly, better understood how they could act on their interest.
- Introduced an owner-occupied repair program to broaden the households that we could serve.

According to Wallace, “coming close to Habitat for Humanity will change you and make you part of something that changes the world.” We extend a heartfelt thank you to the hundreds of organizations and thousands of individuals who did just that in 2015. Through their efforts more than 31 families were able to purchase a new or renovated home, or have their house repaired/preserved to allow them to stay in their home. It is through your valuable partnership that the board, staff and Tiger Team of Greater Indy Habitat is able to fulfill its mission. Thank you.

In 2015, the board of directors built a new home for the Harris family in our first ever Board Build. Each board member recruited a team of friends, family, and colleagues to raise funds through a peer-to-peer campaign, providing more than $66,000 toward the project! Then, teams of 10-15 spent a day on the build site working alongside Amanda to construct her home. Amanda, the board, and volunteers dedicated her home in May.

STABILITY FOR THE KIRBY FAMILY

The Kirby family knew moving. The family of eight was familiar with packing up and moving to a new address every year or two. After adopting their three eldest children in 2002, Mane and Phyllis moved between various Section 8 housing.

“We lived at one rental, a beautifully built home for about a year and then the water started backing up through the vents in the floors into the house,” remembered Phyllis Kirby. “We called them to come out and fix it and they said there was nothing they could do for it.”

At another residence the sewer would drain on the side of the house. One of the last moves the Kirby’s made before applying to Habitat was because the landlord could no longer afford his mortgage and foreclosed on his house.

“It seemed like every time the kids made new friends it was time to pick up and move on; to always bounce from school to school,” recounted Phyllis. “It was not the stable environment that adopted kids definitely need.”

Then a family member recommended Habitat’s homeownership program. They applied, were accepted, and the journey began. Mane and Phyllis completed homeownership classes about financial literacy and home maintenance. “Going through the Dave Ramsey program we had to clean up our debts and it showed us how to get rid of some stuff,” shared Phyllis. “We took a very large credit debt that we owed and we dropped it down to very little.”

They volunteered on the construction of their own home and on houses for fellow Habitat homeowners. Together, they each completed the 300 sweat equity hours to prepare them for purchasing and owning their first home with a zero-percent mortgage.

The Kirby’s closed and moved into their new home right before the Christmas holiday. That day Phyllis summed the journey up: “It means a dream come true. Kind of something you see for everybody else and never for yourself and then for it to come to life is like a dream come true.”

What’s different now?

“What stands out to me is that I can tell everybody to go to their own room and have my peace and quiet,” said Phyllis. “Everybody is so serene and at peace, it’s unbelievable.”

She already sees changes among the kids at home. There is a lot less arguing. They like having their own space, going outside, joining in bike rides up and down the street with their friends and new neighbors.

For the Kirby family, homeownership means stability, peace, and a new confidence.

THE BUILDERS CIRCLE

The Builders Circle provides a unique opportunity to assure that Greater Indy Habitat can continue to build affordable housing for families in need, providing them with shelter and hope of a better life. In May of 2015, this donor recognition program officially launched with an invitation to walk alongside Habitat homeowners.

Our hope is to build a circle of individual donors that will help Habitat's mission of building homes, hope and community. Personal investments in the Builder Circle program allow us to provide homeownership programming, volunteer involvement opportunities, and materials for home construction.

“Rachel and I are happy to support Habitat for Humanity in our community because we think that safe, affordable housing is a basic need, affecting a person's entire outlook and sense of self-worth. Further, we feel like our contributions will actually help long-term because Habitat helps to ensure the long-term success of our outreach by building community as neighbors help neighbors, providing homeownership classes, and allowing homebuyers to help build their own house. There are few other ways we can make so much of a positive, long-lasting difference with our money!”

2015 KICK-OFF

In early March a warehouse in South Broad Ripple filled with the partners and people that make Habitat's mission possible. Future and current homeowners, volunteers, donors, sponsors, board and staff came together with infectious excitement to begin again the work of building homes and community in 2015.

This was our inaugural "kick-off" event held at the DeveloperTown warehouse. The warehouse is not filled with machines or product, but filled with small custom houses on wheels that act as offices for the young tech company. The cluster of miniature houses served as the perfect setting and metaphor for Habitat's vision. Long-time partners of Habitat for Humanity mingled alongside people who have never been on a Habitat job site.

"We hope the event helps people meet others who are passionate about Habitat and learn how they can get involved for the first time," said Ted Mosey, Greater Indy Habitat director of development. "We also hope that long-time volunteers and donors can learn new ways to deepen their partnership in the work we are doing."

While working on a build site is our most recognizable way to engage, attendees talked to fellow volunteers and homeowners about the myriad of ways to get involved, including: mentoring homeowners, building with Global Village in another country, joining cyclists who ride across the state for Cover Indiana, volunteering with our annual Women Build, and more.

The event also took time to celebrate the work of 2014 by recognizing a few of the many groups and individuals who make our mission possible (pictured from left to right):

- Brent Bowman, "Frank Hartman" Volunteer of the Year
- Allegion, Legacy Corporate Partner of the Year
- St. Luke's United Methodist Church, Legacy Church Partner of the Year
- Duke Realty, Build Sponsor of the Year

The Kick-Off has become an annual event and something that we all look forward to. We hope you will join us for future celebrations!

KICK-OFF

FACES OF THE AMERICAN DREAM

In his book “The Epic of America,” James Truslow Adams stated that the American Dream is: “that dream of a land in which life should be better and richer and fuller for everyone, with opportunity for each according to ability or achievement.” Some say that the American Dream has become the pursuit of material prosperity; that people work longer hours to get nicer cars and bigger homes, but have less time to enjoy their prosperity. Others say that the American Dream is beyond the grasp of the working poor who must work two jobs to insure their family’s survival. Yet others look toward a new American Dream with less focus on financial gain and more emphasis on living a simple, fulfilling life. For generations, millions of Americans have believed that if you’re willing to work hard, you can be successful and build a good life for you and your family. But is it still true?

At Greater Indy Habitat, we believe it is. More so, we believe in building hope and providing an opportunity for families to help themselves through homeownership. With an affordable, stable home, families have more to spend on essential living expenses, as well as continued education, long-term financial security, and reliable transportation. As you can see from this report, it takes partnerships at all financial levels from corporations, faith-based organizations, foundations, and individuals investing into one simple idea: leveraging people and financial resources to help improve the future of families and individuals who have partnered with Habitat for Humanity.

Our 2015 Dream Builders – Allegion, Carrier, DEFENDERS, Eli Lilly, OrthoIndy Foundation, and the Women Build – each made a significant financial commitment of $100,000 or more to cover costs associated with homeownership education, land, materials and construction, mortgage servicing and volunteer engagement. Additionally, these Dream Builders provided a combined 10,000+ volunteer hours to build seven homes. Thank you to our Dream Builders for their commitment to Habitat and for building alongside our homeowners to make their American Dream a reality.

RESTORE OPENS THIRD LOCATION

New Location Expands ReStore Footprint and Community Impact

In 2015, we opened our third ReStore. This is big news for our organization as it increases the number of communities we can serve with our home improvement thrift stores, helps spread the word out about our mission to a wider audience, and increases our fundraising abilities. Most importantly, this additional ReStore allows us to provide more people with the life-changing opportunity of affordable homeownership.

The new Avon ReStore is located on North State Road 267 and 100 North, just a mile north of Rockville Road, and the community has embraced the store. This is evidenced by not only the number of shoppers, but also the amount of donated goods the store receives and, of course, the store profits – the store exceeded sales expectations by almost 40% for 2015, even though it was only open eight and a half months!

The Avon ReStore carries items such as appliances, cabinets, windows, doors, furniture, hardware and lighting, and also has a large selection of books! Like the Indy and Greenfield ReStores, donation pick-ups are a big part of daily operations, since many of these donations can be quite large and heavy. Learn more about our three ReStore locations by visiting indyrestore.com.
